Academics – A Step Toward Success

Cleveland Community College is the threshold for area adults seeking personal growth and development, or to complete the first two years toward a four-year college degree, or to meet the requirements of a new career.

The learning experiences of 1989-90 changed lives forever. Steps taken at CCC will guide students on a path toward successful living as they meet the challenges of the future.

Welding (opposite page, top) is a skill offered in the Continuing Education program that often leads to new career opportunities.

CCC offers many programs of study such as Electronic Engineering (opposite, bottom) that can be completed in two years.

Computer Programing (opposite, left) meets many of today's exciting career challenges.

Students in Communications Technology (above) are prepared to enter the communications field in industry or education.

*Cosmetology Students at Work –
enjoying the challenge*

Cosmetology – A Professional Choice

There's a challenging, creative career opportunity offered through Cleveland Community College that students moving around campus never see. Cosmetology is a satisfying career that offers one the opportunity to work with many different types of personalities.

CCC has a competent staff of instructors and all the necessary equipment to provide students with an excellent education in cosmetology. Students study not only hair, but also skin and nails. The program is divided into two parts: theory and practical hands-on experience. Each part is important and complements the other. Upon completion of the program, CCC Cosmetology students are prepared to take the State Board examination and begin a challenging, creative and satisfying profession.

Student Life – The Special Memories

Besides attending classes, there are countless ways for CCC students to channel their skills and talents and interests. Extra-curricular activities include a variety of clubs, organizations, intramural sports, school publications and student government opportunities. And, of course, there's always the unstructured, unexpected special occasions that happen just because CCC students are who they are – very special people. The pages that follow are a glimpse from the past year.

Photography at Cleveland Community College

Good photographs are not created in the camera or in the darkroom but in the mind of the photographer. This is part of the philosophy of the photography classes at Cleveland Community College. Students have the opportunity to use the most modern facilities available to express their view of the world.

There is a lot of difference between "seeing" pictures and "making" pictures and our students learn how to know the difference.

With the advent of the automated cameras of today it is unnecessary, at least initially, to understand more than just basic camera operation. But why are so many lousy photographs being taken? These classes can help you understand why.

A famous photographer once said, "all the technique in the world can't help if you have nothing to say." If you have something to say, come to CCC photography class and express yourself.

The following nine pages are samples of what you could be doing with your camera. All of these prints were made in the CCC color lab by students and faculty.

Red Clouds

Susan Leach, Winter 1990

"I have always been interested in photography, especially landscapes. To capture the beauty of nature in all its glory is a personal achievement. This sunset with its phantom red clouds was a breathtaking sight. Through the magic of photography, I was able to hold forever in time its beauty. Taking the color photography class at Cleveland Community College has enabled me to better understand and appreciate the color combinations that make up a photo like this. Now, not only can I take a picture, I can process and develop it, too, making it into my own work of art."

"The landscape has been a popular subject for photography for the last 150 years but my interest in photographing it is recent. I have been doing black and white landscape work for about one year now and until we installed the color lab here at CCC I had little interest in color landscape work. I now work with color as an added element to the photograph and have found it to be very rewarding."

Fall Landscape

Steve Martin, instructor

Shelia, professional model

Marty Pickett, Winter 1990

I'm into photography only as a hobby. Steve Martin's color photography class is both informative and inspirational. Before taking the class, I took my film to any store which would sent it to be developed. Now, I get so much more out of my pictures; I develop them myself.

Reflections

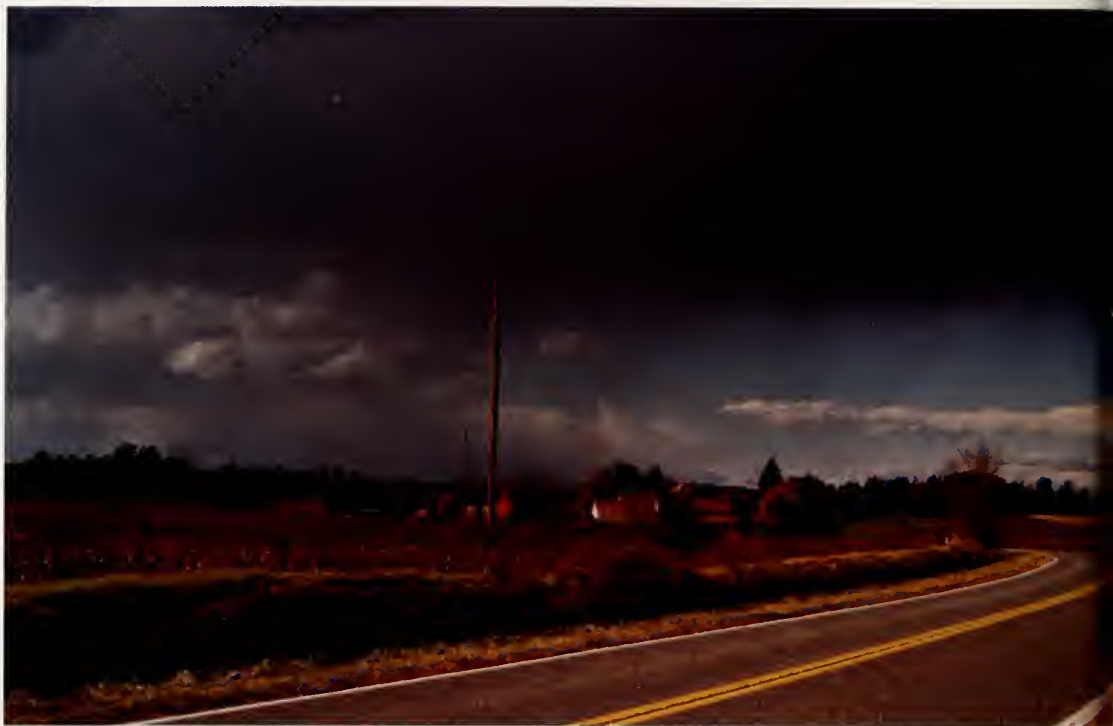

Marty Pickett, Winter 1990

"There are two types of photographers: one is visual, taking the picture as seen; the other is haptic, being expressionistic and a part of the picture. I am mostly a visual photographer, but sometimes a certain scene will inspire me to experiment with different shooting and darkroom techniques.

It was a very clod brisk day in December when I shot this office building near Duke University. As the structure reflected the blue sky and white clouds it appeared to block the cold brisk air, keeping the occupants nice and warm.

Being a communications student, I love shooting and editing video, but I can't hang a video on the wall."

Landscape

Phillip Philbeck, Winter 1990

"I'm always looking for the dramatic and interesting in landscapes or still life scenes wherever I go. Across the road, just above my house, and behind a church is what I consider one of the most beautiful views in the area – a county road winding by a small farm, over rolling hills to the horizon with mountains in the distance.

One warm afternoon in late October, I noticed a line of thunderclouds moving across the sky. I thought then, what a fantastic scene must be across the road. Without wasting time, I grabbed my camera, drove to what I considered the most favorable spot for a photo. The dark, moisture laden clouds had just begun to burst their contents, the full colors were at peak, the sunlight was dramatic. I felt that Nature had anticipated my arrival and moved everything into just the right spot for a portrait."

The Waterfall

Gerald Willis, Winter 1990

"The cool, refreshing waterfall flows down the mountain in a peaceful, tranquil manner. As you look, pretend to walk into the picture and spend the day there. Visit the waterfall and forget the stressful world beyond the mountain. Enter a world of utter enchantment; hear the water splash over the rocks in a rhythm that is soothing to the soul. The blue haze of the water creates an illusion of dreamlike fantasy."

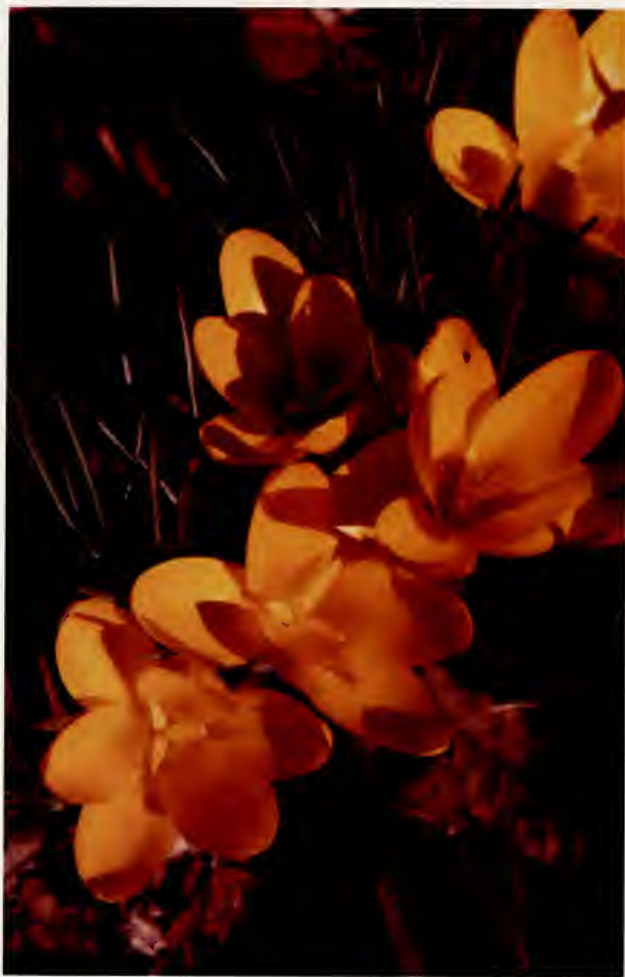

Photography . . .

Connie Wachob, Winter 1990

"To capture moments in time that will never exist again is nothing short of magic. If you think about the old photographs of your grandparents in their surroundings of yesteryear – their clothing fashions, their hairstyles – it can warm your heart to think of them then their love was as young as they were. You could not be there then, but when you look at the photos you seem to go back to that place in time that was theirs.

In a sense, photography is a purifier; it clearly defines and redefines stored memories collecting cobwebs among the rafters of synapses passing from yesterday to today. To visualize again that moment of time causes instantaneous analysis. There is purity within the photograph itself even with manipulation. Photography . . . it's magic!"

The First of Spring
Pat Taranto, Winter 1990

"Most of my time at photography is spent close to the ground – crawling or lying on the dirt. This allows me to get close to the subject I like best: flowers. Viewing through the lens the intricacy of petals and leaves curling and twisting in bright light and shadows is a thrill.

The experience of developing and printing my own photos is very fulfilling. I can emphasize the part of the picture that is the most artistic, eliminating the sections I don't like. I compose the picture to make an artistic statement.

Everyday we pass these little gems of color at people height. In photographing them at their height, I hope to bring you closer to the wonders of nature."

Dedication and Look Back...

James B. Petty, Ed.D.— One Man's Dream: A Community's Vision

Cleveland Community College is the threshold for area adults who wish to seek personal growth and development, or to complete two years toward a four-year college degree, or to meet requirements of a new career.

The learning experiences of 1989-'90 changed lives forever. Steps taken at CCC will guide students on a path toward successful living as they meet the challenges of the future.

In these halls walked a man often humming or whistling We've a Story to Tell the Nations, a hymn with a title appropriate to this leader's unswerving commitment to the goal of establishing a facility that would provide ever-evolving opportunities for citizens of Cleveland County. That those opportunities would go beyond Jim Petty's own vision was a probability that he recognized and endorsed.

In acknowledgement of his vision, his commitment, and his extraordinary achievement, this yearbook is affectionately dedicated to Dr. James B. Petty.

Take A Look..... guess who!!

Take a close look and see if you can tell who this young fellow is. Follow him from childhood, through his muscle bound years, into young adulthood and finally to mature manhood.

Actually, we had a photograph of his Clemson years when he had his head shaved but decided that the general public just wasn't ready for that yet.

Well, have you guessed who it is yet? Of course! It's none other than our own Dr. Petty...kind of hard to tell through all those curls.

All kidding aside, we feel like he hasn't changed much in the last 25 years and we hope the next 25 are just as good to him.

The Beginning – 118 North Morgan Street

Cleveland Tech, established in July, 1965, as the Cleveland Unit of Gaston College, was initially located in two rented buildings on North Morgan Street in Shelby. Classes began in September of that year, with an enrollment of 24 students.

Jim Petty, former principal of Burns High School, was named director of the new unit. Petty's secretary, Jane Baxter Webb, had just graduated from Southern Business college. The secretarial position was her first job.

On October 2, 1965, a local Board of Trustees was officially appointed and the Extension Unit became Cleveland County Technical Institute . . .

In July, 1969, the Institute leased the county home property at 137 South Post Road and moved to the new location, which is the site of the present 45-acre campus. The county home, commonly called the "poor house," had been condemned as a home for the aged.

After two bond referendums, the faculty and staff undertook to do their own building and renovation

In 1972, the county approved an appropriation; and matching funds came from the state which allowed Tech to secure architects to begin work on a long-range plan . . .

The first two buildings were completed and put to use during the fall of 1974.

In June, 1977, the voters of Cleveland County approved a $5 million bond referendum to fund the next two phases of the College's long-range plan.

Construction began two years later on buildings which added 100,000 additional square feet of facilities: including a new learning resources center, classrooms, shops, laboratories, snack bar, bookstore, and offices . . .

In March of 1980, the county commissioners voted to change the name of Cleveland County Technical Institute to Cleveland Technical College.

As students, programs and plans continued to grow for "Tech," exciting changes seemed to always be around the next corner. In the summer of 1987, the North Carolina General Assembly ratified House Bill 52, converting Cleveland Technical College to a community college. The major change resulting from the community college status was the addition of a college transfer program.

The last of the old county home and out-buildings that were used for classrooms and offices for a number of years has come down.

The student activities center was completed in 1989. It provides space for recreation, meetings and classes, student activities and special convention facilities for community and area groups . . .

Another project in the offing is the addition of an outdoor amphitheater. Construction has begun just below the activity center and beside the tennis courts.

As we examined where we are and where we have come from we are understandably proud of our college and the citizens it represents. We look forward to the exciting challenges of the future . . .

Criminal Justice

The Criminal Justice Technology curriculum is designed so that it may be a multifaceted program of study. A core of courses affords students opportunities to acquire basic knowledge, skills and attitudes in study options in corrections, law enforcement and security services. Included are subjects such as interpersonal communications, law, psychology and sociology.

Job opportunities are available with federal, state county and municipal governments. In addition, knowledge, skills and attitudes acquired in this course of study qualify one for job opportunities with private enterprise in such areas as industrial, retail and private security.

"Many career opportunities are available in criminal justice areas, however hiring agencies are beginning to look for students with at least a two year degree in law enforcement – it strengthens their professional standards."

Electronic Engineering Technology

CCC has a broad based electronics curriculum designed primarily for students who will go to work in industrial areas and for electricians who are now required to deal with electronics as well as electrical circuits.

The program starts at ground level, assuming the student has no knowledge of electronics, and covers electrical fundamental components and applications as well as analog and digital electronic circuits. Classes are divided between theory and practical application.

Many local industries are requiring their maintenance and installation employees to be familiar with electronic control devices.

Graduation from the Associate in Applied Science Program also requires that students take math (including basic trigonometry and algebra) and physics courses and general education courses preparing them for four-year colleges.

The Computer Office Automation Technology curriculum is designed to prepare students for employment in organizations that use small computers to process information. Students will learn to use a variety of software packages, to select and use the proper hardware configurations in solving common business problems, and to assist and support users. This program stresses the use of small computers in the business office environment to provide managerial information needs.

"At CCC, the faculty really wants to see students succeed."

Newly inducted Gamma Beta Phi member Jill Acker has determination as she approaches graduation in the winter. Besides school, Jill enjoys jazz and new age music and involvement in the Shelby Community Theater. Both reinforce her decision to succeed. Jill is considering attending UNC-Charlotte and striving for a degree in marketing.

Adult High School

"After dropping out of high school I realized, at age 15, the importance of education. Thanks to my mother I've been attending the Adult High School Program for the past year and a half."

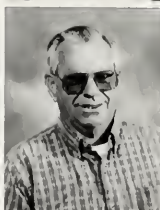

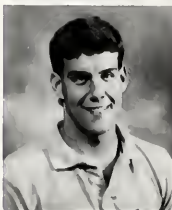

Like too many young students today, April dropped out of high school. But she made a wise choice after a CCC student told her of the program in which she is now enrolled. Upon graduating, April plans on working in Gastonia or Kings Mountain.

Computer Programming

"I was hesitant to return to school, but I'll never forget the ease I felt when I walked through the door of CCC. I especially appreciated being respected for what I knew instead of being looked down on for what I didn't."

Diane was a zoology major with pre-med interests before she decided to attend CCC and study computer programming. Her husband encouraged her to return to school. Diane works with students in the G.E.D. Program and is a Gamma Beta Phi member.

Visiting Artist

Kyrin Packard is CCC's new Visiting Artist for the 1989-90 school year. Ms. Packard's training includes a B. A. from the University of North Carolina and the Graduate Theatre Program at California State University. She has performed and toured extensively with the San Gabriel Performing Arts Company, the L. A. Acting Company and Theatre Rapport in Hollywood. A native North Carolinian, her professional credits regionally include the North Carolina Stage Company, GM Productions and Saturday Night Leftovers. She has also done feature, promotional and industrial films as well as national TV and radio commercials.

The visiting Artist Program was established in 1971 as a co-operative effort of the North Carolina Arts Council and the Department of Community Colleges. The only program of its kind in the nation, its purpose is to heighten the awareness and cultivation of all art forms through interaction between professional artists and the communities they serve.

Our Bloodmobile

Cleveland Community College has long been a supporter of our local Red Cross Bloodmobile efforts. By having a bloodmobile on campus, students are exposed to the value of community service upheld by the college. For many students, it is the beginning of what will become a lifetime habit and a new way of thinking.

CCC Clubs and Organizations

At Cleveland Community College there are a variety of clubs and organizations for students to be a part of. Regardless of your interests you will find some extracurricular activity to become involved in.

Depending on your curriculum, you might want to become a member of the fashion merchandising Le Club de Esprit, or if your grades are good enough you might join Gamma Beta Phi honor society. Of course everyone enjoys being a part of the Student Government Association and helping plan our spring and fall picnics.

So get involved. Join one of these groups and make new friends, do something good for yourself and others

Career Day 1990

Career day is always a popular event that brings in students (sometimes for their first visit) to CCC from throughout the county. Representatives from throughout the region come to speak to area high school students about various career opportunities.

Students ask questions, get answers, and leave with much food for thought.

Student Candid

One of Cleveland Community College's superstars.....

Dawn and Sherry...maybe you should try out for the cheerleading squad...maybe start one.

Somebody's arm is sure going to be sore tomorrow!

Spring Feed '90

Hats off again to Adrian Wyrick and his Student Government Association for the wonderful time at the 1990 Spring Feed. Everyone pigged out on barbeque with all the trimmings, played games and topped it off with ice cream.

The SGA sponsors this event and another one each fall along with dances and other activities to help keep school spirit high. Be sure you don't miss the next one!

Who needs tables and chairs when we have a perfectly good sidewalk....

OK Sherry, keep your hands out of Dawn's ice cream....

It's not polite to wave with your mouth full,
Frank.....

What form...what grace....

We've heard of piggin' out, but that's ridiculous...

Retirees

Since the 1989 yearbook was produced we have had six more of our staff and faculty to retire.

All of these faces are familiar to you, faces which will be missed.

They have been a vital part of Cleveland Community College for a lot of years and their contributions will never allow them to be forgotten.

We wish you much health and happiness in your retirement.

1990 Annual Staff

Well here it is again...you're 1990 yearbook. We'd like to say it was fun to produce this year, but we can't! Why? Well, mostly because of the new Macintosh computer that we are producing this year's book with. Actually it's not the computers fault...it's the operators fault for not learning about computers years ago. However, it has certainly been interesting and educational to say the least.

If anyone out there would like to be on the yearbook staff please let us know. We can use writers, photographers and anyone who is a whiz on the Macintosh. We hope you enjoy reflecting on the past year and let us know if you are interested in with us next year.

Special thanks to Jim Anderson, Matthew Newton and Coleen McCain for their valuable assistance.
